Thai Student Association at the University of Queensland (UQ-TSA)

Thai student association has been existed for several years with the main objective to serve Thai students community at UQ and share a better communication among them. In October 1999, the association was officially established with the University of Queensland's Student Union.

Our association has been opened to all interested individuals and currently carries an impressive number of members comprising Thai students and students of other nationalities.

As a representative of all Thai students at the University of Queensland, we proudly organise the society to act as an intermediate for Thai students and others who are interested in Thailand and her cultures.

The objectives of UQ-TSA are:

“Help Health Hub” to assist Thai students and Thai community to achieve a safety and healthy living as well as extending relationship and cooperation among Thai people living in Brisbane and surrounding.

Help : Thai students and Thai community assistance.

Health : Promoting Thai students and Thai public health.

Hub : Centralize the updated information and wider Thai network inside and outside UQ.

Furthermore, UQ-TSA also organises activities for members to get together from time to time.

Such as welcome and farewell parties, Thai cooking classes and Loy Krathong festival
